“ Those that seem to have been lost among the living often appear as hopeless and unredeemable. They fatefully walk a dark road alone. When they leave this life and are finally released from the thicket of opinions and judgement their lives are seen in a new light. These rare souls suffering among us are always angels in disguise. Confined to wheelchairs, homeless in the street or filled with drunken rage, they have come into our lives to teach us Compassion, Forgiveness and the real face of Love. A Love that never quits. Joe was one of the rare angels who come to live among us and teach Love in all its forms. Only the most courageous angels are brave enough to volunteer for this task. Joe had a poet's heat & spirit for a compass as he navigated his way through a world of rusted steel, heartache & judgement. He'll soon be back among us. Returning as an enlightened teacher or disguised as a social outcast he will most certainly be a gift to each of us again. The sun now shines in his heart as it should for everyone who knew him.

“ I'm glad to have the opportunity to memorialize my cousin, Joe. I was sorry to hear of his passing. Our paths crossed only once in recent years, but I have thought of Joe many times over the years.
