“ I just met Neva on Sunday at JJs in Huntington. Some idiot guy left her stranded at the gas station, threw her belongings out and drove off. I tried to reassure her things would be OK and I gave her a ride home to Bluffton at 2am. She said she felt safe with me because she went to school with my kids and attended the Boys and Girls club with them and had seen me there. I did for her what I hope someone would do for my kids if they were in trouble. She seemed reserved but very nice. What a shame. Prayers for the family.

“ I love you, Neva Lou. My heart is swollen with pain tonight. I absolutely adore you.. I miss you greatly. You were my little mini me. Around me I believe you were one of the greatest versions of yourself. You literally had a glow to you.. You were beautiful and to see you happy made me happy. This is a difficult time for many and many loved you abundantly. This isn't going to be easy.. I love you more than you knew, I wish I could tell you right now just how much. You were my friend, you were my sidekick and I will cherish and hold onto these memories. I promise I won't forget you... You will always have a spot in my heart and in my mind. You were beautiful even when you didn't feel it. You were loved and my family and I loved you even if sometimes you didn't feel loved. Grandma Vicki loves you and is mourning you also. We adored you so so much, Neva. You gave my life so much purpose.. and when I first meant you, you changed my life forever. I can still hear your laugh and I can still see your pretty smile. I know you were in so much pain most your life and I pray now you aren't in any. I hope for once right now, you are genuinely happy. I love you.
