“ The Yule's were on my paper route when I was young and it was always fun to stop there. They often offered a cold drink in the hot summertime and a chance to warm up a couple minutes in the winter before I set out again. Bill helped me build a clubhouse with shingle samples he found in his garage and I enjoyed a long friendship with Bill after that and began playing tennis with him regularly. He was extremely active and was tough to beat. He was also a very good listener and I recall how wise I thought he was. I admired the love and respect he showed to his mother-in-law especially after Bette died and how he was always there for her. My condolences to his family. We never really know how our actions affect those around us but Bill's legacy is probably a little more far-reaching than you realize.##imported-begin##Michael Hinesley, Fort Lauderdale, FL##imported-end##
